We say Goodbye to our Ole Woodsman

"This will be my last column as I will be moving to an entirely new state soon. I have enjoyed writing this column, and doing the research. Even though I will be leaving New England entirely, I will always be a "Swamp Yankee" (Connecticut Yankee) in my heart and will probably return to the area in some future time. It is time for new adventures, new experiences and new opportunities. I wish everyone in the village well "- Jan McLaughlin (aka Old Woodsman).

Our Woodsman's last column is quite appropriate. Read about the history of Millbury and our Village right here.

In the Ole Woodsman's column you've read interesting facts from 'the Ole Woodsman'. For almost a year and a half, we have enjoyed these wise writings and you did not know who wrote them. Many suspected it was Lennie ;)

At this time, we sadly say goodbye to our Ole Woodsman. We have been honored to have Jan McLaughlin provide us with this column. Jan has always been a vocal advocate of our land and her passion and love for our village has caused interesting ripples here over the years. She will be dearly missed by me and others. We hope she will continue to send us her thoughts from her new home in a brand new environment. Thank you Jan. Go with our prayers and loving wishes.

Excerpt from "Birding in Eastham, Cape Cod"

Deciding I needed to come back at sunrise to this spot, I proceeded back to the beach. There are cliffs to the water. Descending the stairs to the beach, there were promising compositions with the cliffs, beach and ocean waves breaking on the beach. One, in particular, almost has a painterly effect as I looked at it afterwards. The water marks on the sand, people in the shot, and other elements worked. For this shot, I applied a Photoshop Watercolor filter and adjusted the curves.
